BROKERS IN PARDONS

French Army Officers and Deputies Involved in Grave Scandal.

PARIS. May 20 .- The latest subject for gossip on the boulevards is what is becoming known as l'affaire Marix and which threatens to involve statesmen, judicial authorities and lawyer in a grave scandal. Marix is a captain of artillery and rapporteur of the Council of War at Cherchemidt Prison. the highest military tribunal of the nalast on charges of selling pardons. and prolonged cheering.

All the attacks of the speakers on the labor movement were delivered under the guise of high-sounding phrases; and in the name of "patriotism," "Americanism," "Christianity," "freedom," and "justice," the assembled self-styled "benefactors of mankind" were called upon to crush out the organizations formed to better the conditions of the working class.

Capitalistic Idealism Rampant.

The air was recking with idealism and the bourgeoise orators jumped nimbly back and forth between Christ and cook, patriotism and payroli, altruism and account books, freedom and low wages, justice and long hours, the American fiag and the beneficent effects of benzoate of soda, ideal manhood and the glorification of the scab. In the golden haze induced in the capitalist breast by the occasion, all these things melted harmoniously together into one grand sweet song of exceeding Profit. And as many a manufacturer, under the magical influence of oratorical rhetortic, cherished the hope that the wicked unions might finally be exterminated altogether, and became exalted with the vision of an abject working class and an unlimited industrial graft, their faces became transfigured and almost weraphic in expression. The hard lines of business worry and commercial struggle were softened and disappeared under the benign influence of the Ideal.

These sentimental and idealistic features of the convention reached a

The American Peace Society of Box ton, has sent out the most "scurril-ous" kind of literature, under the sanction of Superintendent Stuart, in-structing teachers how to conduct the exercises of the day so as to make the best possible impression upon the

the best possible impression upon the pupils.

And the worst is not yet. The leaflet referred to says that the movement is growing, and that in 1907 school superintendents at their annual convention at Chicago passed a resolution recommending special instructon on arbitration in all schools on May 18. In 1908 school officers in fifteen states recommended special exercises for the day. That same year the School Peace League was established and numbers among its founders some of the most prominent educators of the United States.

"Treasonable" Suggestions.

The literature sent out under sanction of the school officials contains some exceedingly treasonable utterances. For instance, the teacher is instructed to write on the blackboard and have the pupil repeat from it the words of Garrison, "My country is the world, my countrymen are all mankind." How unpatriotic! And again, "The eighteenth century achieved peace with justice between thirteen American states. The nineachieved peace with justice between thirteen American states. The nine-teenth century extended it to forty-five states. The twentieth century will achieve peace with justice between all the nations of the earth. The all the nations of the earth. The United States has shown the method of attaining a United World." If the world is to achieve-peace and justice between all nations as the thirteen colonies did and later the forty-five states, they can only do it by consolidation and amalgamation. If this is done what becomes of national patretism?

The teacher is further instructed to place upon the blackboard for the edification of the patriotic young American the following:

THE NEXT STEPS IN WORLD ORGANIZATION — Arbitration treaties pledging each nation to refer disputes with other nations to courts of law or of arbitration. World Parliament to meet regular-ly. Gradual, proportionate dis-armament. An international police

In closing the pamphlet advertises literature which, judging from some of the subjects, certainly should be "suppressed." For instance, teachers are recommended to get a manual especially prepared for them of 134 pages, written by Lucia Meade, the subject being, "Patriotism and the New Internationalism." Another pamphlet is, "Luc Cost of War," by B. J. Trueblood.

The charges against the officers are grave and the witnesses insist that they behaved in the most brutal manner imaginable. The proprietors of the restaurant gave the following version of the incident:

"On May 7 the police beac up a half Jozen bakers and created a riot in front of the place of Roffman's bakery, which is but several feet away from us. An hour latter, without any provocation, several of the away from us. An hour latter, with-out any provocation, several of the bluecoats rushed in our place and with clubs attacked the diners. They threw people through the glass win-dows and door and landed on the heads and bodies of innocent men. There was no excuse for such action and up to this minute we are igno-rant of any cause that led to this disgusting display of brutality," disgusting display of brutality."

Gens of Operatic Scoring.

"Die verkaufte Braut" qualified absolutely as a gem of operatic scoring and comedy design. The music of Smetana held the separate attention and admiration of the listener. As in the case of all operas conducted by Maestro Mahler, the overture divided the first and second acts instead of opening the performance—an exceed-ingly wise and effective departure, especially for a theatre, such as the Metropolitan, where no restrictive measures have been devised for dis-couraging the continued influx of latecomers every evening in the season The result of Macstro Mahler's post ponement of the overture was to con-centrate upon the orchestral intro-duction the enhanced interest of the audience. The delightful instrumen tal comment upon the rapidly devel-oping and succeeding episodes of the opera was finely emphasized and brought into basso relieve by the Bo-hemian conductor's reading of the

And now different, now beautifully dierent, from the stereotyped "incidental divertisement," the wooden-like bullets of the old French and Italian operas: The true poetry of motion, given a quasi-symphonic musical setting, was this succession of Bohemian village folk-dances! Again, the chorales, in which the big choir had been finely drilled, re-

The only clean knockdown came shortly after the opening of the fifth round, when Johnson laced a fifth round, when Johnson laced a lightning light left to O'Brien's jaw. sending him to the boards. Jack bounced up like a rubber ball and poured in a fusilade of lefts and rights o the big black's head and body ohnson, however, blocked most of the O'Brien was faster in his footwork than at any time in recent years. He was in and out and stinging Johnson with his wasplike jabs all through the encounter. Clever ducking and block-ing smothered most of Johnson's coun-ters. Johnson, overweight, and evi-dently not in the best of condition, was dently not in the best of condition, was slow on his feet, else O'Brien would not have evaded some of his bull-like rushes. The negro repeatedly rushed his smaller antagonist, but seldom landed cleanly. A right hand counter in the fifth round out O'Brien's eye, and that was the sum total of the damage done by either fighter, though O'Brien's labs had Johnson's lips bleeding frequently. bleeding frequently.

Referee McGulgan said after the fight that O'Brien did remarkably well under the circumstances. He weighed 162 % pounds, while Johnson acknowl-edged his weight was 205, and it was Johnson had nothing to say after the bout, except that he thought he had the better of it. O'Brien was enthu-siastic over his showing. He said he had accepted a proposal to meet Al Kaufman in San Francisco in the near future.

More than 4,000 sports dug down in their jeans for the price to witness the There were seats for 3,700 and fully 500 stood up along the walls or choked the narrow asies. While the bulk of the gathering was composed of Philadelphians who went to see the "native son" O'Brien go six rounds wit5h the big negro, large delegations from New York, Washington, Balti-more, Pittsburg and other Eastern more, Pittsburg and other East-cities ad even from Chicago came to see the festivities

S. P. TEAM WANTS MEN.

The Workingmen's Educational Club of Brooklyn is on the lookout for members of the S. P. who want to join their baseball team now in formation. A meeting will be held in the club rooms, 777 Atlantic avenue, on Thursday, May 20, at 8 P. M.

At the last meeting of the 34th A. D. S. P., a committee of five were elected to visit the good standing members of the good standing members of the district to collect from $1.00 up as an anniversary gift to The Call. As a result of the canvass $18.00 was collected, which we forward herewith and will send more as soon as collected. We sincerely hope that every district will follow our example and thus help our daily paper in its present condition.

We also decided to contribute $1.00 per week to The Call Sustaining Fund for the period of four months.

A SOCIALIST SYMPOSIUM.

How Will the Co-operative Commonwealth Be Brought About?

Brought

The Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia, has had the enterprise to ask ten of the representative Socialists of the country to answer the above question.

The ten Socialists addressed were Eugene V. Debs, Victor Berger, Gaylord Witshire, Upton Sinclair, Bernard Berlyn, John C. Chase, William Mailly, Robert Hunter, A. M. Simons and J. Mahlon Barnes. Their answers make interesting reading: can only improve it. The way to im-prove that condition is in raising the ideans of the men who constitute it. Is the increasing army of the

Novice. - The difference between stocks and bonds is analogous to the difference between the deel difference between the deed A share of stock is an evidence of ownership; a bond is an evidence a loan. When a corporation is formed each member puts into it some money or other property and receives in return shares of stock in proportion to the amount of his investment. The ownership of stock makes him a mem-ber of the corporation. He can sell or otherwise transfer his stock at will (in ordinary corporations), and the purchaser thereby becomes a member of the corporation, while the man who has sold all his stock ceases to be a member. A stockholder cannot ordinarily deman I that the corporation take back his stock and return him the amount of the investment. Stockhold-ers only vote in the corporation, electing the directors; ordinarily their votnumber of shares they own. A bond is quite a different thing. When a corporation wishes to borrow money. it commonly does so by issuing and selling bonds. A corporation's bond is its promise to pay a certain prin-cipal sum of money at a certain time. and to pay interest at a specified rate annually until the principal is paid. Bonds, like stocks, may be sold or transferred at will. The ownership of a bond does not make one a member of the corporation; it makes him a creditor of the corporation on certain defined terms. The corporation may not distribute any profits among its members until it has provided for the memoers until it has provided for the payment of the specified interest on its bonds. After interest is provided for, the remaining profits may, at the discretion of the directors, be divided among the stockholders. This distribution is made in each proportion to the amount of stock he holds and is described as a payment of dividends. The interest rate is fixed by the terms of the bond issue. The dividend rate fluctuates from year to year according to the profitableness of the corpora-program—forced so far toward it that the dominant political party will carry it out unawares."

A. M. Simons, editor of the Chicago Daily Socialist, thinks it impossible to give a direct answer to the question of production by purchase or by confiscation. He says:

"A Socialist victory in national affairs would never take place until there had been a lot of minor victories. Municipal undertakings in cooperation would have progressed just as they have in Europe. We would then proceed to get possession of the most concentrated capital. As fast as the movement could be organized we would extend this ownership. Fundamentally, we would begin at once to make employment for the unemployed. The pouring of this reserve army into, industry would practically make private business unprofitable. It would force up wages at once. For, if a factory could not find anyone to take the place of its employs, it would have to raise wages on their demand until it took away the margin of profits.

combined. On the other hand, the ultra-radicals would not listen, either —they weren't going to pay anything at all for those lands if they could help it. The ultra-radicals did take the land without paying for it—but that didn't settle the question. It hasn't been settled yet in France.

"The same thing was true of slavery in the United States. Sixteen years before the war, Henry Clay proposed to pay the slaveowners a billion dollars for their slaves—twice as much as their value in open market. The slaveowners received the proposal with open derision. Slavery was a Godgiven institution. The Bible supported it. Besides, what could they do with the money without slaves? And in the North the Abolitionists (like our own Socialist impossibilities) said: 'However, Socialists are the last "However, Socialists are the last propose on earth to say what the future will be. We dont believe in the govelieve in the govelieve in the gover country, according to the state of economic and social development whick that country has reached. We wouldn't step into office on March 4th and say: 'Now everything will be public property.' Elected by vote of the people, we would have to shape our course so as to hold public approval. Probably, long after the arrival of a Socialist regime, we shall have people working on the wage and the wage and the system—a transitory condition, due to replacing an old system by one radically different.

"All this is postulated on a peace-able, orderly revolution, brought about by the ballots of the working class."

THURSDAY, MAY 20.

TAFT IN DIXIE.

William Howard Taft is to-day the guest of the good people of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina.

It will be news to most Americans that a Declaration of Independence is supposed to have been issued by a convention in that county on the 20th of May, 1775. Each year a celebration is held to commemorate that alleged event. This year the President is the

He will be dined by the foremost citizens. The flower of the South will turn out to greet him, and he will doubtless deliver a masterly oration upon independence.

The Call would like to suggest to Mr. Taft a few things worth seeing while he is in Charlotte.

When he sits down to the banquet he will find on one side of him

Mr. E. B. Moore; on the other side Mr. D. A. Tompkins. He might ask these gentlemen to show him two sights of the South. They know all about them, and think of them with pride.

One of them is the chain gang. At 4 o'clock in the morning gangs of "niggers" are turned out of prison. On their legs are heavy chains, and they march between guards armed with shotguns. At break of day they are set to work. Over them stand two infamous slave drivers, who never allow a back to straighten.

Mr. Taft will see there old men, cripples, consumptives and young lads who, for fear of the whip, do three times the work of free men. At nightfall Mr. Taft will see sweaty, drooping, broken men fall exhausted into wagons to be carted back to their cells.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Tompkins can also show Mr. Taft another

In the county of Mecklenburg and thereabout are scores and scores of cotton mills. Mr. Tompkins and men who receive Mr. Taft own these cotton mills.

Let Mr. Taft rise before dawn to-morrow morning, and stand at the gate of one of these mills. When the whistle blows he will find coming from all directions out of the night heavy, brooding men, tired, anxious women, thinly clad, unkempt little girls, and frail joyless little lads.

Children of five and six years he will see, and as one set comes to the factory, another set of the same hopeless, poverty-stricken beings will leave the night shift.

Some of the greatest mills in the South are in Charlotte itself. Number three of Highland Park and the Florence will be enough for Mr. Taft to see if heart is in the man.

He will find the schools starved. He will find children robbed of every heritage of childhood. He will find tender young life crippled and crushed and ruined in the cotton mills of Mr. Moore and Mr. Tompkins and his other fellow banqueters.

Listen, Mr. Taft, steal away to-night from the banquet. Walk to one of the great mills. Pass along the silent streets under the stars until you come to the bright lights of a gigantic, shaking, throbbing building. Sit out there in the night and look at the lights from the thousand windows, and THINK of the babies watching and tending those great machines.

DON'T BLAME IT ONTO US.

"The Government of the United States is nothing more than a big business concern."

If we let that stand as our own utterance, we should expect a howl of denunciation from respectable citizens and pillars of church and state. We should expect to be told that it was little short of blasphemy to put the United States Government in the same category with sausage factories, iron mills, stock brokers' offices and other sordid money-making concerns. We should be given a lesson on the respect due to the glorious institutions for which our critics' forefathers fought and bled-whether they did or not. Our crass materialism would receive a stinging rebuke-at least in the opinion of the rebukers.

So we hasten to remark that the sentence quoted is not our own. It is the utterance of a prominent member of the National Association of Manufacturers, now in session at the Waldorf-Astoria. We only add Hamlet's comment: "All of which, though we most potently believe, yet we hold it not honesty that it be thus set down in print.'

BLUE LAWS AND BLACKMAIL.

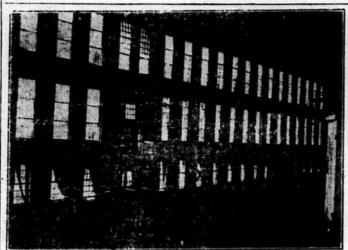

The blue law regime at Coney Island is quite in line with the attempts to grab city parks for armories, schools of design and what not. Also, it is quite in line with the system of levying tribute on dens of vice. Make innocent pleasures difficult and expensive, and you naturally increase the patronage of saloons, brothels and gambling hells, which can be "regulated" under the penal law for the profit of the men who govern the city. Degenerate Puritanism and thoroughbred Satanism shake hands, and the capitalist politi-
