Precedent Set as to Liabilities of Members of Labor Organizations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 .- "Application for a writ of certiorari is denied on authorities cited."

By this simple announcement today the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court disposed of the latest phase of what has come to be known as the "Danbury Hatters' case."

The effect of the decision is to affirm the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the 2d Circuit, that the members of a labor union cannot be held to answer for damages to property resulting from violence due to a strike, and accompanying boycott, ordered by the officers of the union, unless it is conclusively proved that the members of the union actually participated in the acts of violence, or authorized them, or had guilty knowl-

This case originated in the Federal Court for the District of Connecticut. In the reports it appears as the case of Loewe against Lawler. It has been before the Supreme Court once before, and then the court held that labor unions were within the Shernan Law, and could be held to answer in damages to the extent of three times the actual loss inflicted, with costs and attorneys fees added, due to any violence resulting from a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Gallegher said that before he had been a month in Persia Shuster felt the strong undercurrent of patriotism that was moving the people to resent the division of their country into spheres of influence of Great Britain and Russia, and that, far from fail-ing to recognize the existence of these respective spheres of influence, as some of the English critics of Shuster's course have alleged, the Treasurer General determined to give the Persians a permanent weapon with which to resist aggression and establish their independence.

What Shuster's Plan Was.

Shuster's design, so his friend said vesterday, was to work out the rudiments of a standing army under the cloak of strengthening the customs gendarmerie. After securing the full approval of the Persian Cabinet he sent back to Manila for some of his old associates, men who had been or were in the Philippine constabulary. to come to Persia and help him. SHANGHAI, Jam 15.—The celebration of the inauguration of the republic is gneral today throughout this city. Both Chinese and foreign banks are closed and the foreign stores have observed a half holiday. A remarkable feature of the Republican receptions has been the immense extent of the queue-cutting that has taken place.

CHI-FU, China, January 15.—Three revolutionary cruisers are expected to arrive here on January 16 from Shanghai, and 2.000 Republican troops will follow them on January 17. The inhabitants of the town and its vicinity show entire sympathy with the revolution. Republican flags are displayed everywhere, and voluntary queue-cutting has become general. The revolutionary spirit is spreading rapidly throughout the province of Shantung, and no evidence is visible of imperial opposition to the Republican movement.

Postmaster General Sees Government Operated Telegraph Plan Killed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 .- President Taft, incensed at the statement issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock, last night, advocating government ownership of the telegraph lines of the country, today summoned the Postmaster General to the White House for a conference.

The President and Hitchcock conferred for about an hour in regard to the Postmaster's statement, and after the conference denials were made that there was any friction between the Postmaster and the President, and the following official explanation of the situation was issued:

"The recommendation of the Post master General that it would be well for the government to buy the tele-graph lines and incorporate them in the postoffice system appeared in an earlier annual report submitted by him to the President. After some dis-cussion it was decided at the suggestion of the President to postpone ref erence to the matter to another year and not to bring it forward then, be-cause of the recommendation of many other important changes, including the postal savings bank and the par-cels post. These, if adopted, would take up all the energy of the Postoffice Department in making the necessary changes,

The Postmaster General intended to bring this matter to the attention of the President before the publication in advance of this part of his report. After having made preparations for publication he was suddenly called out of town without having done so."

One feature of the affair that has aroused a lot of comment is that the Postmaster General's statement said that he would recommend to Congress that the United States Goevrnment take over the telegraph lines of the country.

The Postmaster General, it is contended, does not report direct to Congress, but to the President of the United States who himself makes recommendations to Congress in regard to the postal system or transmits the Postmaster General's recommendations.

The police found two Italians, Giovanni Peduto, of 383 2d street, Jersey City, and Antonio Mucciolio, who are employed as street levellers by the contracting firm of Daly & Ivins. They had been working with two other Italians, known to them only as Frank and Patsy, in filling in ground near Hamburg avenue, on the Newark meadows.

When they were shown the body of the murdered man they cried out that it was Frank. They said the dead man had a wife, and they thought he lived in Brooklyn. They said that during the week they dived in a little shanty on the meadows and broke camp Saturday. When they came to the hut today neither Patsy nor Frank showed up. The police are looking for Patsy.

No one had seen the man who was killed go out on the meadows, although a flagman of the Jersey Central railroad is stationed near the hollow where the body was found. The flagman, however, asw a wagon load of Italians go down to the back just as a crowd began to gather around the body. The wagon did not back just as a crowd began to gather around the body. reducing prices for his attractions. "The Million" at the Herald Square Theater, and "Little Boy Blue" at the Lyric seems to be the beginning of a general movement in that direction among New York theatrical managers. Charles Dillingham now anapplying either personally at the time nounces that the price of 200 balcony and places where elementary clases are in session or write to General Secretary R. R. Rinder, 118 South 3d reduced to $1 each, although box seats have been increased to $3 when boxes are "split up." In an interview in which he discusses his reasons for initiating the reduction in prices, Colonel Savage says, among other things:

"A hotel manager tries to keep all of his rooms filled, even if he has to charge less. An empty room at a hotel is a loss, and so is an unsold seat in a theater. How much better it is for me to have the balcony at the Lyric filled at $1 a seat than only half filled at $1,50. In that way I am keeping my plant working at full time, by offering a bargain that brings bargain not only to me, but to the theater patron.

"There are many things that hav reduced the profits of the high priced cheatrical ventures. For the last five years the automobile has been a cause of lopping off about ten weeks from the average theatrical season. and $1.50, respectively, may be pur-chased for $1.10 and 60 cents.

A man who owns an automobile has an amusement plant—a theatrical attraction. The automobile owner and as many friends as his machine will hold take a ride into the country instead of going to see a play, and the theater manager loses that many patrons.

"Motion pictures and cheap vaudeville have reduced gallery patronage by about one half in the same five years. The $20 or $25 a week clerk can spend 40 cents and provide himself and his wife with an evening's entertainment that ends early enough for them to get to sleep at 10 o'clock Formerly the same clerk spent a dollar for the two in the orchestra of a melodrama theater or the gallery of a first class house.

"These are two of the causes for the proportionate decrease in the patronage of the high priced theaters.

"The managers are not organized to fight the demands of the theatrical labor unions, for example. The expenses of supplying music have more than doubled in the last ten years on account of the demands of the musical the fight of the case of "The Thief." "The managers are not organized to account of the demands of the musica union. take into account the influence of the parts of the city, where well known and popular plays are presented nominal prices by companies that in some cases compare more than favorably with the higher priced Broadway situated in popular districts, within easy access, without cost of transportation, of the homes of patrons, and two large audiences a day are the rule at all times. Attendance at the the aters means economy of money, time and energy, with the practical assurance of taking no chances on the kind of play one pays to see, which cannot be said of some of the loudly advertised and over inflated Broadway

It is probable that the prices admission to the upper parts of the Broadway theaters will have to come lower yet to meet the increasing com-petition of the stock houses, moving pictures and vaudeville combined. Colonel Savage is a wise business man and certain other managers will have to get over their contempt for the hos polloi if they want to restore the lagging fortunes of some of their the-aters. It is a curious sort of business accumen that would rather see empty seats in the upper regions of expensive theaters than see them filled, even at prices a little below what has hitherto obtained. "PATERNALISM"-A BEGGAR'S PHILOSOPHY It usually requires considerable self-restraint on the part of Social-lessly crushed out of the clergy under lists to avoid expressing contempt, and at times, irritation regarding his heel. It may be noted, by passing.

the utterances of anti-Socialist critics, and as we are not remarkable for a rigid observance of the conventional proprieties these expressions are frequently given vent to openly.

And, perhaps, the most contemptible and irritating of all these has been merciless in seeking his selfcomments is the hackneyed observation that Socialists desire to es- aggrandizement—and he is tablish a "paternalistic" government, and that such government has always failed.

It may be noted here that this particular specification, nine brazen malice times out of ten, comes from spineless, fawning creatures, who them-stupidity, deliberately fled about Soselves are often selected for their ability to wheedle and cajole donations and largesse from the big plutocrats who own the government. displaying their sores and expectantly waiting for the crumbs, are the very fellows who use this charge most frequently in the indictment against Socialism. The cynical plutocrat who uses the govern- presents Cardinal O'Connell, the man ment as a tool, and who is under no illusions as to its "paternal" character with respect to him, rarely brings this charge. Whatever else may be said of him, he isn't a beggar and hasn't the mind of a Fleischer delivered mendicant, so he leaves it usually to the intellectual beggars who are dependent upon his "charity."

That President Schurman, of Cornell University, should have the dwelt upon this charge of "paternalism," in his recent address to the upon students of that institution, need occasion no surprise therefore. It press. is exactly what might have been expected. Capitalism has to a that large extent transformed the function of the modern university president from a scholar to that of an expert beggar, and these people are Editor Twentieth Century Magazine. Perhaps I ought to of part of their expected ration. Hence, the Socialist who would make clear the point the proprietary rights of Lazarus as a beggar at the gate is moved to my utterance by any continuous the carbana antagonism toward the carbana and the Carbana antagonism toward the carbana and the carbana looked upon as an undesirable competitor who, by increasing the olic Church nor any personal opposidemand for crumbs, is certain to diminish the supply. There is not bishop. enough to go around, and Schurman's further declaration that poverty exists because enough cannot be produced, fits admirably as the mouthpiece of an institution which, in my conviction, feels itself threatened by the new and influential threatened by the new and influential

This mental picture of the Socialists entering the premises of the government not to take possession but to solicit the government to be "good to the government to be government to the government to to become "their father and their ment to be "good to them," mother and their only Aunt Jemima," is naturally enough the concept that the mind of a professional beggar might be expected to

At present the government is merely the tool through the ossession of which one class is enabled to maintain its exploitation f another. The capitalists use it as such, and never dream of the tool they use, standing in a paternal relation to them. The idea that the Tafts, Knoxes, Roosevelts, Wickershams, et al., throw crumbs to them is one they have never entertained. They are nasters of the house, and the Presidents, Attorney Generals, Supreme Courts, Senators and Congressmen are no more than the house menials who serve the master and do his bidding. And to the development of autocratic in-their reward is the same as that of Lazarus—the crumbs from stitutions which threaten the dignits the table. That they could on their own initiative apportion the dinner reserved for the capitalists among themselves, the Socialist beggars and Lazarus, outside the gate, just as they please, is an impertinence of which they are too well trained to be guilty. The capitalist master knows it, too.

No, there is not going to be any "paternalistic" government set up by the Socialists any more than the capitalists have established one that they rely on as beggars to be "good to them."

We shall use the government as our instrument just as they They do not permit their servants to control them, and neither e. The possession of the government has not rendered the capitalists subservient and cringing in their attitude, but rather aggressive and confident in their mastership. And we shall take exactly the same mental attitude toward it as the capitalist does when we have supplanted him in its possession. And when such possession is taken with the definite object of securing the full social value of the collective product to the producers, those taking possession being the producers themselves, there is no room for "paternalism" to function. And or for the control of the c for "paternalism" to function. And as for the incentive to produce which Schurman doubts will exist under Socialism, that will be identically what it is now-the possession of the product. It is now sufficient to supply incentive enough for the capitalist who takes it, and it will be sufficient for us also.

Of course, President Schurman also declared that the workers were now getting the full product of their labor, and without taking all institutions as temporary and prothe trouble to refute it, we may also recognize that the statement spressive, and, on the other hand, a proceeds logically enough from his philosophy of beggary. The static church which regards itself as beggar always gets the "full value of his product" without regard forever.

After years and years of militant struggle, fighting resolutely and relentlessly for the overthrow of the capitalist system of industry against opposition of every kind, continually announcing in no uncertain tones the revolutionary purpose that inspires us, declaring the existence of a world-wide class struggle, and uncompromisingly taking part in it always and everywhere, when we have grown to count our numbers by tens of millions, when on all hands the capitalists of the world view our progress, with fear, alarm and hatred, the intellectual Lazarus lying at the rich man's gate can see nothing in us except a multiplied reflection of himself, a host of beggars trying to induce a fetich called government to "be good to them," an army of mendicants whining for an equal division of crumbs! If we did not understand the groveling philosophy that interprets the working of all social forces in terms of beggary and comprehend the reason for its existence, it is possible that our irritation against it might be much greater than it

But when we Socialists take possession of the house our work will not stop with clearing out the capitalist owners and their politicians. The approaches and grounds will be set in order also, and we shall pay particular attention to bazarus at the gate, to close up the business he has so long conducted at the old stand. close up the business he has so long conducted at the old stand. His sores may be disgusting, but still more disgusting is the constant whining repetition of his beggar's philosophy as the measure of a movement, one of the principal results of which will be to make beggars and beggary forever impossible.

But the inexorable economic factors namely, the concentration of large aggregations of wealth into fewer and fewer hands, on the one hand, and the ever growing intense impoverishment of the growing intense impoverishment of the great masses of the people—a result in-evitable under a system that thrives on exploitation and plunder of the many by the few—could not but stir up deep-rooted, smoldering discontent in the breasts of those who toil hard for a pit-tance, in order to eke out a miserable tance, in order to eke out a miserable existence, and whose chances for earning a decent livelihood are being daily minithe alarmingly menacing evil of

It is, therefore, perfectly natural that the politically free, patriotic male vetes of Uncle Samuel's heterogeneous family, exasperated beyond endurance by the oppressively high cost of living, should feel exceedingly resentful over the unjust treatment they are being subjected to at the head of a few resety money and treatment they are being subjected to at the hands of a few greedy, money-mad, riotous billionaires, who have, by divers means, legal as well as illegal, misap-propriated unto themselves all of the vast, tangible wealth of this country, and hav-ing control over the industries and finance of the republic, hold undisputable sway over the destinies of ninety-three million

STATE SOCIALISM

State Socialism is an expression which originated in Germany, and refers to reforms to be accomplished the existing State, with a view to the establishment of permanent social peace. State Socialism, as viewed in Germany a cataclysm for our republic, and our type of civilization. onaly searching for means whereby to right them.

It is true these wide awake, class conscious men and women are as yet in the minority. There is not a sciutilla of at doubt that the American people, who seem to be unusually fond of being humburged will continue, for some years to come, to make the merry rounds in the political circus and receive the clowns' rewards therefor—poverty and misery for their pains.

But cheerless as the outlook for the immediate future may appear, there is a ray of hope in the expectation that sooner or later those who today battle for the rights of the despoiled everywhere and always arrayed in the van of the marchers toward progress and economic betterment, the Socialists, will succeed in arousing a salpority of the class that tolis to the necessity of exercising their franchise and unified forces on the industrial field on behalf of themselves, their wives and children, to the end that the social wealth of this nation, the product of the joint labor of society, become the communal property of all the people, and that no one be permitted to exploit and rob his or her fellow man and woman and live off their labor.

Let us, then, put a lifting shoulder to the wheels of social progress, and thus hastes the day of emancipation of the wage slaves from the unbearable yoke of capitalism.
